DAY HEARD FROM

American Peace Commission Makes Report to Cabinet.

It is Not Yet Known What Spain Will Do With the Amer- ican Offer.

DAY HEARD FROM.
American Peace Commissioner Reports to Cabinet Today.

Washington, Nov. 22—At the cabinet meeting today a brief telegram from Paris was read from President Day of the peace commission. It was substantially in accord with the newspaper reports of yesterday's proceedings in the peace commissions, although no reference was made to any excitement attending the meeting or any open disagreement.

It was stated that the next meeting would be tomorrow. The cabinet discussed the matter and it was the judgment of the members that there would be at least one meeting after tomorrow even if the Spaniards conclude to reject the American proposals.

Paris, Nov. 22—The Spanish peace commissioners last night telegraphed to Madrid the substance of the United States memorandum yesterday, and late in the evening were discussing it among themselves.

The Spanish commissioner affirmed that he and his colleagues did not know what they would do regarding the American offer.

There is a difference of opinion among unofficial people near the commissions, but the prediction is made that Spain will decline the American offer of money, that she will refuse to cede the Philippines and will say to the United States:

"You may take the archipelago because you have power to do so. As you advance we will retire protesting against your greedy aggression. We will faithfully carry out our protocol pledges and leave Cuba and Porto Rico in your hands. You came here to engage in discussion under the terms of the protocol, but you evidently meant when drawing up that document to provide a conference in which you proposed to announce at the proper time what you will do, whether we agree to it or object."

"Such an attitude robs the conference of its negotiatory character and sets up the United States as a dominant power whose first purpose is to listen but whose ultimate determination is to do its own will."

ULTIMATUM.
Spain Hears America's Final Proposition.

Paris, Nov. 22—The United States peace commissioners have undoubtedly made their final proposition here. When the conference opened yesterday afternoon, Judge Day, addressing Montero Rios and his colleagues of the Spanish commission, returned to the protracted negotiations and reaffirmed the desire of the American commissioners to reach an amicable conclusion. Then, handing the American presentation to the interpreter, Judge Day concluded his remarks by saying that the Americans, preferring not to break the armistice or resume hostilities, had determined upon another and final proposition, which he hoped would lead to a speedy and amicable adjustment.

That portion of the presentation setting forth the new proposal—the proposal that the United States must have possession of the entire Philippine archipelago, with a tender of $20,000,000 for a treaty cession of the islands—was then read. Without betraying their mental attitude, the Spanish commissioners suggested an adjournment until Wednesday.

The new proposition, with its collateral, was embodied toward the end of the American memorandum, which filled 20 type-written sheets. Only this part was read in the joint session, the memorandum then being delivered to the Spaniards for translation by their own staff.

Spain's proposition to invoke the office of a third power to construe the words "control, disposition and government of the Philippines" was rejected by the American commissioners on the ground that dictation of the third article of the protocol, dealing with the Philippines, is as broad and clear as to afford no justification for arbitration as between the parties to the agreement.

On the terms named the United States proposes a mutual relinquishment of all claims for indemnity, national or personal, subsequent to the outbreak of the last Cuban insurrection. Nov. 28 is fixed as the date on which the United States commission desires a definite response to yesterday's propositions and all other subjects to be referred to.

WONT GO TO MONTAUK.

War Investigating Committee Will Send a Committee Instead.

New York, Nov. 22—The war investigating committee decided today not to visit Montauk Point in a body but to send a committee to prepare a report. Mrs. Susan G. Powell, of New York, was the first witness called because the committee heard that when she offered to go to camp as a nurse, she was not accepted because she did not agree to maintain secrecy should she find dereliction of duty. She said her offer and rejection made in a private house to an officer of the Red Cross society had no connection with the army.

Commemorative Tablet for Olympia.

Olympia, Wash., Nov. 22—The souvenir committee of the city of Olympia has purchased a commemorative tablet for the flag-ship Olympia, five feet high and three feet wide, to be placed on the forward turret between the two 8-inch guns. The central figure will be Fame, suspended from whose arms will be streamers inscribed with Dewey's famous order at Manila, "Gridley, you may fire when ready."

Thousands Fishermen Starving.

Tacoma, Washington, Nov. 22—Advices from Japan state that a thousand fishermen in Etrop, Northern Japan are on the verge of starvation some with nothing to eat, others existing on rats and putrid fish. The herring fishing season has been the worst for years.

Blizzard in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 22—The snow storm continued through the night and drifts are very high. Street car traffic is at a standstill, business is stopped and railroads delayed.

OPERATIVES WALK OUT.

Three Thousand Refused to Submit to Reduction in Wages.

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 22—After threatening for some days, the local mill trouble culminated in an individual walk-out yesterday. Over 3000 employees are idle, three of the larger and one of the smaller mills being included in the trouble. They are the King mill, 30,000 spindles and 1085 hands; Sibley, with 900 spindles and 40,256 spindles; Enterprise, 23,400 spindles and 900 hands; Issett, 3550 spindles and 105 hands.

The affair is styled "an individual walk-out," while it is in reality a strike. The trouble began about a month ago, when the Southern Manufacturers' association announced that, in order to meet competition, it was necessary to make a reduction of from 8 to 13 percent in all branches of the industry. When the scale of reduction was posted, it was found that it started in some cases below the second hands, none above being cut. Straight away the operatives began organization under the direction of the local representatives of the Federation of Labor. Saturday the merchants of the city, with but two exceptions, presented by Charles Estes, president of the association, a petition asking that no present reduction be made, as it would precipitate a strike.

The walk-out started in the weaving department of the Sibley, operatives from the King joining. The strikers then went over to the Enterprise and were joined by the workers there. A mass meeting was held yesterday afternoon, the speeches being made by several operatives and Patrick Walsh, mayor of the city. Upon his suggestion a committee was appointed to wait upon the mill owners to see if the matter could be adjusted. Their conference will take place today. Meanwhile there is firm determination on both sides. There has been no disturbance, though the factory district is a perfect hive of meetings.

Some time ago announcement was made by the Southern Manufacturers' association of a reduction in wages in the Augusta mills of from 8 to 13 percent. The operatives held meetings and took steps to organize, with a view to contesting the position taken by the mill owners. One or more representatives of eastern labor unions appeared to advise and encourage the mill hands in resisting the proposed reduction. The help presented a petition to the Manufacturers' association setting forth their objections to the cut.

President Charles Estes of the association recently said that the Augusta mills were paying higher wages than those paid elsewhere in the south, and that the cotton business generally has dropped to such a low level of prices that it is impossible for them to continue the higher rate of wages.

New York, Nov. 22—Today this city is the rendezvous for thousands of men closely identified with sports of every kind, pugilists particularly, who have come from all over the country to see Corbett and Sharkey don the gloves. The uptown hotels are thronged and trains have been bringing in the sports all the morning.

Corbett still holds the position of favorite in the betting. Sharkey men are getting 100 to 80 for their money.

Both men are resting today. It is expected that 10,000 people will witness the contest. The best seats are all sold.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

Negro Commits Brutal Outrage Upon Lynn White Woman. She May Die.

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 22—Mrs. Louise Butterick was murderously assaulted by an unknown negro this morning in her house. A diamond shaped rock was used and she was beaten terribly about the head the scalp being almost pummeled to a jelly. She was carried to the hospital and may die. Searching parties are scouring the woods for the brute.

Blizzard Kills Two.

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 22—The blizzard killed two men here yesterday. George and Ed. Cotton, farmers, while driving home were caught in the blizzard, fell from their horses and were frozen to death.

Trouble in President's Regiment.

Wooster, O., Nov. 22—As a result of the secret meeting of the officers of the Eighth Ohio regiment, President McKinley's own, a round robin signed by all of them was handed to Colonel Hard requesting his resignation, also that of Lieutenant Colonel Dick, the quartermaster and adjutant.

Colonel Hard refused to resign. Desire for promotion is said by Hard's friends to be the real excuse for the action of the officers.

LOCAL NEWS.

Sergeant O'Brien Wanted in Cuba.

Sergeant William O'Brien of Company M has received a letter from Worcester from a son of the late Major Surgeon Brown of the Second regiment. The letter requests Sergeant O'Brien to go with the party that will soon leave for Santiago to bring home the remains of the soldiers buried there. Sergeant O'Brien is believed to be the only man who can find the grave of Major Brown. The major died at the hospital in Santiago while Sergeant O'Brien was there and the latter saw him buried and knows just where the grave is. Another officer who went there to get the body could not find it and so the relatives of the deceased major are anxious to have Sergeant O'Brien go. In all probability he will be one of the party when it goes.

No More 15-Cent Shoes.

There are no more 15 cent shoes to be obtained in the city, the "15 cent shoe company" having departed to work more profitable fields. Hereafter $3.50 shoes will cost $3.50. The representative of the company came here full of hope, and while he did not expect to deceive the people, he evidently hoped that they would not stop to think of where the scheme would land them. At the time The Transcript described his scheme, he had given out just two tickets. It is said that these two tickets were the only ones out when he left and that they had brought no returns.

A House Stoned.

A two-tenement house on Linden street in Williamstown owned by Z. F. Beverly and with one half occupied by H. W. Allison and the other side vacant was vigorously stoned by boys Monday night about 7 o'clock. Four or five large windows were broken.

At the time of the stoning Mr. Allison and son were in the house. Upon being summoned the perpetrators could not be found, nor has any trace of them yet been discovered. No reason for the vandalism can be assigned.

PALMISTRY.

Madam Julian, the celebrated palmist and hand reader is giving excellent satisfaction to those who have called to see her at her private parlors in Room 2, Blackinton block. Remember it is for ladies only, strictly private and costs but 50 cents. Call and see her.

Murdoch Bros., the State street shoe dealers, are still giving free to the 20th purchaser, the amount of their purchase. Mrs. McDonald of Beaton street was one of the lucky ones, receiving a pair of shoes free. Dennis Hoxie, of State street, another, receiving a pair of rubbers.

DEAD IN BED

Man Who Worked Here
Found in New York
Lodging House.

GAS WAS TURNED ON IN ROOM

A Companion in the Room Was Unconscious But Recovered. Robert Kerschner, a German, Had Worked at F. J. Barber's
Until Three Weeks Ago.

An Associated Press dispatch to The Transcript from New York city, received this afternoon, says that Robert Kerschner, a North Adams harness maker was found dead today in a lodging house at 206 Fifth street. He was asphyxiated by inhaling gas, which was turned on in his room. Frederick Morgan, a music hall singer, who slept in another bed in the room, was unconscious when found, but recovered. It is believed the gas was turned on accidentally.

Kerschner was not a local man, although he had worked here. He came to this city from Newark, N. J., about the middle of October, and although a harness maker by trade, he went to work in F. J. Barber's factory sewing dress suit cases. He left the factory November 1, and is believed to have left the city soon after.

While here he boarded with a German family on Walnut street, but they knew little of his affairs. He was about 40 years old, and had no relatives here. It was not known by his fellow workmen at the factory whether he had a family or not.

During his short stay here he received several letters, which are thought to have come from New York city. He was quiet in his habits, and while he was not here long enough to make many friends, he was well liked by those of his associates who came to know him best.

He was unable to speak English very fluently, and it was only among the Germans that he was known.

To Rebuild Lebanon Springs Road.

It is now said that the Lebanon Springs railroad, recently sold to Charles D. Haines, will be entirely rebuilt, with new and first-class roadbed, new stations, new and ample equipment, fast and frequent trains, cheap freight and passenger rates, and an earnest desire to build up all kinds of business through that locality by making a first-class railway. In Kinderhook it is stated that prominent people along the line of the Lebanon Springs road have been to interview Mr. Haines during the last summer, and at one time he made the announcement that he would help the people by rebuilding the road or see that it was done by others.

It was reported to the police this morning that the 2 1/2 year old son of Patrick Riley of 28 Prospect street had wandered away from home and was lost. Game Law Violated—A Remarkable Accident—The Good Will Club's Cooking School—Pleasantly Situated—Successful Harvest Festival—A Thanksgiving Event.

A COOKING SCHOOL.

The Good Will club is preparing to start a cooking school for the girls of the high school and the two next lower grades. The evening sessions will also be held for the benefit of working girls who cannot attend in the day time. The plan is to hire a competent teacher and to make the school very helpful to all who attend. If possible Mrs. Fuller, who taught the cooking school last winter, will be secured. She is a graduate of the Boston Cooking school and a very successful instructor. The term, which will not open till January, will be six weeks and two lessons a week will be given. The pupils will be charged five cents a lesson, or 60 cents for the term, and this money will be used for the purchase of materials. This will by no means pay the expenses of the school and the ladies are now soliciting subscriptions. The smallest sums will be acceptable and it is hoped that all will feel able to do something toward helping along the work, which those in charge believe to be highly beneficial. Under the auspices of the Good Will club cooking schools have been conducted in this town the past two winters and it is felt that much good was accomplished. It is hoped that a general interest may be awakened and that the coming term may be even more profitable than those of the past. There will be in the course of the term one or more public demonstrations to which the ladies of the town will be invited, and there can be no doubt that with such co-operation as the Good Will club expects and deserves the school will be of great benefit to the girls who avail themselves of its advantages.

A THANKSGIVING EVENT.

The seventh annual ball and cake walk under the auspices of George Williams and D. C. Nobles will be given in the opera house Thanksgiving night. The event is always a big one for the colored people and steps are being taken to make this one even more successful than those of past years. Prizes will be given to the winner of the cake walk and to the best two step dancer. Porter's orchestra has been engaged for the occasion and refreshments will be served. The committee of arrangements consists of D. C. Nobles of North Adams, G. E. Peters of Northampton, Darsay Adams of Saratoga, N. Y., and William Robinson and M. Neal Williams of Williamstown. The floor managers will be Clarence Grant of South Williamstown, D. Freeman of Pittsfield, R. Till of Amherst, A. Porter of Albany, N. Y., and C. Bland and Frank Till of this town.

A REMARKABLE ACCIDENT.

A remarkable accident befell the 18-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Wright of Riverside the other day. The child was in her high chair looking out of the window and she finally stood up in the chair and, taking hold of the back of it, rocked it till it went over with her. As she came to the floor her left hand struck the edge of a tin pail and the forefinger was cut off at the first joint as squarely as it could have been done with a chisel. Mr. Wright did up the finger and no doctor was called. The child is doing well. The end of the finger that was cut off has been preserved in alcohol and when the child becomes old enough to realize that one hand is imperfect she will be able to see what she lost by the accident.

GAME LAW VIOLATED.

Complaint is made that partridges are being snared by the wholesale in the White Oaks region. Certain men from Berlin, N. Y., visit the place once or twice a week and are suspected of being the guilty parties. It is believed the birds are sold in North Adams. The residents wish there was some way to detect the offenders and put a stop to the practice. A long string of snares was found last summer by fishermen. These had probably been left over from last season, which would indicate that the illegal work is not a new thing.

PLEASANTLY SITUATED.

Prof. J. W. Lawrence, who recently went to Holly Springs, Miss., to teach music in Rust university, writes that he is enjoying his work greatly. The climate is delightful, his pupils are appreciative and apt and he is very pleasantly situated in every way. He recently sent home to his family a large box of chrysanthemums.

SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL.

The harvest festival held in Grand Army hall Monday evening was largely attended and proved very enjoyable. The evening was exceptionally pleasant and everything combined to make the event a social and financial success. Games, music and dancing afforded pleasure to all, and a good supper added to the general cheer.

Frank Davis, who served in Company M. Second New York regiment, enlisted a short time ago in the Ninth U. S. Infantry.

The steam heat has been turned on in the new depot and several fires in open sheet iron boxes are kept going night and day to dry the plastering. The work of finishing will begin as soon as the plastering is dry. When the new depot and baggage room are ready for use the old baggage room will be moved to the railroad yard and fitted up for an engineer's room.

Mrs. T. S. Sherman of Richmond, Ind., is visiting her sister, Mrs. I. B. Houghton. She will go from here to Boston to visit friends and will then go to New York city to live with her daughter.

A new board roof is being placed on the Pittsburg railroad company's coal shed in this town. The work is done by the company's carpenters.

WEATHER IS MILD.

Flowers Are Still in Bloom in English Gardens.

FORCHES ON THE STREET AT NOON.

Dense Fog Made Them Necessary on Tuesday. Last—Queen Will Decorate Lord Kitchener—Blow at Sunday Concerts—Rose from the Banks—Duke of Westminster Criticizes the Kaiser.

London, Nov. 20.—Almost unprecedented mild weather is being experienced for this time of the year in England. The open gardens are full of flowers, which are blooming in profusion. One of the most dense fogs in many years, however, enveloped London on Thursday last, greatly impeding railroad and street traffic. The quaint spectacle of pedestrians feeling their way with flaming torches at noon was seen in the London streets, where a number of accidents occurred.

Queen Victoria will shortly hold an investiture at Windsor castle and will present the Sudan decorations. She will personally invest General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum with the grand cross of the bath.

The queen of the Belgians has issued a rescript to her sister queens and empresses asking them to form an alliance for the purpose of helping the lace-makers of Europe. She has appealed to them to forego wearing imitation lace and to bind themselves to wear only the machine-made fabric threatens the extinction of artistic, hand-worked lace. The queen's appeal met with a ready response and the queenly alliance has already become a fact.

Intense interest has been aroused by the Puritanical decision of the licensing committee of the London county council to refuse licenses to halls where Sunday concerts are given for profit. This will practically mean the abolition of Sunday concerts, which have brightened the London Sunday for the past few years, and which even their opponents admit always consist of the highest class of music. The newspapers are unanimous in denouncing the decision and demand that the London county council refuse to ratify it. The queen gives a snub to the opponents of Sunday music by having the Guards' band play on the terrace at Windsor castle every Sunday afternoon while she resides there.

There is some comment on the fact that Colonel MacDonald, who, some people claim, saved the battle of Omdurman by his promptness and skill in repulsing a dervish onslaught which General Kitchener overlooked, was not included among those who have received Sudan decorations, although he has been promoted to be an aide de camp of the queen. This is a high distinction and is considered in some quarters to be a peculiarly appropriate recognition of one who rose from the ranks.

Colonel MacDonald, who has served through seven campaigns, was a barefooted lad when he enlisted. He served 10 years in the ranks and won a commission in the Gordon Highlanders by his splendid conduct during General Lord Roberts' Afghan campaign. He was one of the officers who survived the Majuba hill disaster of the Boer war; but he was taken prisoner by the Boers, who returned him his sword, which had been presented to him by the men of his company when he won his commission, saying that a man who had earned such a sword should not be separated from it.

The Duke of Westminster has written a letter in which he says: "After what has been said and recorded in blue books about the misdeeds of the sultan and his complicity in the murder of 100,000 of his subjects, I feel that Emperor William's acceptance of the hospitality of a monarch who by a series of unparalleled crimes has placed himself outside the pale of civilization must be deeply regretted and deplored."

This letter elicited a vehement attack on the Duke of Westminster in William Waldorf Astor's Fall Mail Gazette. It is known that Mr. Astor and the duke are the reverse of friends, owing to a squabble over the possession of the famous visitors' book and other personal articles which Mr. Astor insisted were comprised in the purchase of Cliveden.

Ernest Terah Hooley's Carleton club exposure has created much excitement and heartburning in Conservative circles, and a number of influential Conservatives have resolved to make an effort to retrieve the scandal by returning Mr. Hooley's £10,000 contributed to the party funds, for the benefit of the bankrupt's creditors. Mr. Hooley's statements are already doing considerable harm to the Conservative prospects in the country. A. J. Balfour, the Conservative leader in the house of commons and first lord of the treasury, is said to have urged that the money be restored to the donor.

Mr. Hooley was quite sure that he would get a baronetcy at the time of the jubilee, and, in fact, he issued invitation cards to guests which he rented on the top of Ludgate hill, overlooking the ceremony at St. Paul's cathedral, in the names of "Sir Ernest and Lady Hooley."

It is understood that the queen or the Marquis of Salisbury vetoed his baronetcy, which the Conservative wire-pullers did their best to secure. They only returned Mr. Hooley his check which was for £30,000, after the jubilee honors had been published.

Truth accuses Two Sloan of unfair riding in the race for the Palestine plate on the Friday before he sailed, and says that if an objection had been lodged, Sloan would assuredly have been disqualified, as he nearly sent the horse ridden by Weldon over the rails and also palpably interfered with Liebenstein.

Truth adds: If the stewards had done their duty they would have suspended Sloan for the remainder of the meeting. He has been indignantly favored by the authorities during this visit, but it is hoped next season the stewards will administer justice impartially.

FASHION AND FABRIC.

Dark, rich plum colors of a jodish cast are highly favored among winter tailors' costumes of cloth.

Satin is made great use of this autumn in lining coats, narrow loops and pointed ends of velvet ties are machine stitched in silk on their extreme edges.

Many of the small peleries and other shoulder capes of last winter are modifiedly changed into very attractive styles with a frill at the edge and long slender stole fronts.

On some of the rich dark costumes for the winter are arranged yokes of silk applique, with revers of seal, mink, astrakhan, chinchilla, otter or other dark fur beyond.

Fringe in jet, silk, beads, cords and chenille has come into fashion if not into general favor. In spite of their familiar drawbacks, fringes of every make are used by high class dressmakers.

There is this season a very extensive show of small fur neck pieces and a few show in all the long fleeced furs, such as black fox, marten, lynx, Alaska sable, etc., with fair sized muffs to match.

The princess dress of today has undergone great transformations. Often on imported models only the back is a princess model, and the front is in the form of a bodice and yoke, a bolero, a cutaway Louis XIV coat, etc.

This season the yellow toilets, as a rule, are decidedly yellow rather than the dainty honey-suckle and primrose tints. The brilliant Marshal Neil yellow, the orange and military gold yellow shades are especially favored.

The odd and pretty combination of orange and gray, so becoming to many women and so popular the last season, has been carried into the domain of elegant evening dresses, where it has gained still greater vogue and success.

A very popular half cape cut like an immense Charles IX collar and applied to both redingote and princess dresses is much used on imported models from both Paris and London. It looks like large revers points in front and like a cape collar pushed down on the shoulders in the back and on the sides.—New York Post.

COL. BRYAN NOT CONVINCED.

When the results of the election were known the administration party agreed with alacrity and unanimity that the silver issue was buried beyond the hope of resurrection—the republican successes of 1898 following upon the heels of the great popular demonstration in favor of the party in 1896, furnishing an apparently substantial basis for the opinion.

But it takes more than one party to accomplish the sepulture of a political question and in this connection it is interesting to note that the man who was the most conspicuous in the presentation of the free silver issue two years ago and who is generally regarded as the standard bearer of the democracy two years hence, insists that the recent elections were not sweeping or decisive and that the Chicago platform has not been abandoned, but will be reaffirmed in 1900, "because it gives expression to the hopes and aspirations of a large majority of the party."

It is understood, of course, that no other kind of a statement was to be looked for from the leader of the silver democrats, whose claim to the presidential nomination in 1900 is based upon the alleged vitality of the 16 to 1 issue. It was hardly to be expected that Col. Bryan would break the silence of military prudence to publish to the world that his party had been everlastingly licked and that the vital economic question which it had championed under his leadership had been settled till the crack of doom.

There are certain things that devolve upon a party leader, and one of them is the faculty of coming up serenely after a reversal with the announcement that the defeat was by no means crushing as two years later would testify. But although Mr. Bryan may speak out of the abundance of self-interest, the fact remains that the views and purposes of the man who is popularly conceded to be the choice of the party for president will have a powerful and in all probability determinative influence on the issues of the contest.

As it stands today, Mr. Bryan and free silver is the program for 1900 on the democratic side. The certainty of a republican senate for six or eight years from March 4 next conveys no dismay to the democratic leader, for campaigns are not waged with reference to the outlook for an immediate advancement into law of the issues advocated, but for the simple and practical purposes of gaining the victory. Mr. Bryan faintly suggests that the war may raise some question of sufficient importance to turn public attention away from domestic problems, but there is not the slightest possibility of his abandoning the silver issue because the senate is blocked against the kind of legislation he favors for a term of years.

The battle municipal is on.

Let the republicans fight their own battles and harmony in the party will be assured right speedily.

Congressman Lawrence has found a "victim" for his Alford postoffice. It is another triumph of diplomacy.

A good many Company M men want pensions, and according to the present standards, a good many deserve them.

Congressman Lawrence continues to appear in public and speak after election almost as much as before. Verily, he must be a statesman instead of a politician.

—Banish bitterness from the battle municipal. Fight, but fight with honesty of purpose born of conviction and be prepared to accept the will of the majority even if its judgment is contrary to your own opinions or preferences. The majority can generally be trusted to do about right.

Mr. Crosby's campaign cost him, according to his statement, just $302. It is a pity that more of the candidates do not feel called upon to follow the spirit of the law even if the letter of it does not compel them to follow Mr. Crosby's example in giving reports of their election, or defeat, expenses.

Thanksgiving comes Thursday, but unfortunately for one side or the other, the caucuses get in ahead of it.

The republicans are thoroughly aroused over the alleged attempt to fill the caucuses tonight with democrats. It is safe to say that no democrat with principle or democratic from principle will be found attempting to vote in tonight's primaries.

Loyal republicans will be prepared to abide by the results of tonight's caucuses if they are cleanly and honestly conducted—in other words if they are controlled by bonafide members of the republican party as the law intends. Let only republicans vote and let the decision of the majority be abided by.

Pittsfield's no-license campaign is vigorously flourishing, and has reached the interesting stage where the saloonmen are said to be seriously considering the advisability of suing the ministers for libel or some such offense. Pittsfield has no cause to complain of North Adams' habit of taking its politics straight.

It is a much discussed point among local lawyers just now as to whether some of the supporters of Mr. Parker have violated the election law in regard to anonymous campaign circulars. But even if they should have, no one will feel disposed to follow the matter up, for those who are interested know very well about who was responsible for the comments printed concerning Mayor Cadz.

The caucuses tonight are for republicans, men who are republicans and intend to be republicans. No man can expect the support of republicans who attempt to capture their caucuses with democratic votes. This question of the control of republican caucuses should be settled tonight. It ought to go out as the abiding conviction of republicans that they are determined to keep their caucuses clean.

One thing is noticeable to even the casual observer of the campaign literature put out by the managers of Mayorality Candidate John Parker. The campaign dodgers issued by them are much more mild and temperate than were the contents of their column of advertising printed three days in The Transcript last week. All of which shows one of two things: First, that the campaign committee were disposed to place in another paper matter much more rabid than they were willing to print in their own paper; or, second, that the refusal of The Transcript to continue insertion of abusive matter has had the salutary effect on them of tempering their literature and drawing out some of its venom. At any rate the later campaign matter shows great improvement in character over the earlier, which is to the credit of the good sense of Mr. Parker's editorial staff.

No person having voted in the caucus of one political party shall be entitled to vote or take part in the caucus of another political party within the ensuing twelve months. No registered voter shall be prevented from voting or participating in any caucus if he takes the following oath which shall be administered to him by the presiding officer of the caucus:

You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you are a registered voter in this ward (or town) and have the legal right to vote in this caucus; that you are a member of the political party holding the same, and intend to vote for its candidates at the polls at the election next ensuing; and that you have not taken part or voted in the caucus of any other political party for twelve months last past.

Such voter may be challenged like any other voter. Any person whose right to vote is challenged for any cause recognized by law shall not be permitted to vote until he has taken the foregoing oath; and the clerk or secretary of the caucus shall make a record of the administration of said oath to every person who takes the same, which record shall state whether or not said person voted. FASHION NOTES.

New Shirts and Bodices—A Curious Development in Millinery.

Shirts from the waist to the knee are tight and without flares or pleats, but below the knee they expand in a rippling flare. There are many different ways of cutting the garment to attain this effect. Sometimes the skirt is circular, all in one piece; again it may have a seam in the middle of the front. Many elegant gowns are made in this latter way.

The skirt buttoning at the back promises to last for some time. Those women who wish to follow the mode, yet prefer not to be molded into their garments quite so closely, may compromise matters by arranging several ties pleats under the clasp and having but four or five buttons.

Coats and jacket bodices are left open to show a more or less elaborate vest, and it is fortunate this style remains in favor so long, for it allows of many variations of costume. Different vests give a new effect to the same gown and afford an economical way of appearing in fresh attire. Bases are long or very short and are almost invariably rounded in front. A slight round is more becoming to a stout figure than bases cut away very much, and long bases do not look well on a short person. A picture is given of a decidedly novel hat appropriately named "chantedair," or rooster. The foundation is a small amber brown silk felt form, bordered by a ribbon of the same tint. A turban drapery of golden amber satin surrounds the crown and forms a sort of fan at the left side, upon which is placed the head of a red cock, with comb, beak and eyes complete, and the long amber colored neck feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

PRESENT STYLES.

Changing Costumes Supersede These of an Expansive Nature.

Close, defined forms are growing more and more characteristic of the mode—tight sleeves, tight bodices, tight skirts. This is the less noticeable that trimming is much employed; but, as fashions are apt to run to extremes, in course of time the clothing garments will doubtless be shorn of this factitious protection and left to stand upon their merits. Let us hope that the antique "pull back" will not return and again convert womanhood into the resemblance to tightly strapped umbrellas.

Skirts are full around the foot and are often buttoned at the back. No stiffening of any kind is used in them. The lining is attached to the outside, the loose skirt lining having proved highly inconvenient. Capes of heavy plaid are worn not only for traveling, but for the street in the morning, and are rendered less severe than they formerly were by the addition of a circular ruffle around the shoulders and the edge, over which ruffle frequently falls woolen fringe to shade the plaid.

The picture shows a ball gown of golden yellow satin, the skirt being embroidered with large white marguerites and foliage. The square cut bodice is close fitting at the back and puffed in front, the bosom being crossed by loops of silver beads. White lace frames the décolletage and descends in a point in front, and there is a broche-like embroidery of silver and beads which passes over the shoulders. The belt and sides of the skirt are embroidered to match as is used in the short, puffed sleeves, which are additionally trimmed with lace.

The Milky Way.
How far away the milky way is there are no means of judging with much confidence. Professor Barnard has given good reasons for thinking that its groundwork consists of stars which are much smaller than the sun, perhaps hundreds or thousands of times smaller; so that its distance from us may not be great, as star distances go.

FEMININE FACTS and FANCIES

Directories For Finding Heiresses.

There is more of the up to dateness about the modern Frenchman than he has generally had credit for. It used to be thought that beyond all things a Frenchman was the soul of love and gallantry in his dealings with the fair sex, but what is one to think after seeing the Heiress Directory, which has recently been published in France?

In this useful and important volume (looked at from the man's point of view, who is seeking a wife with money) there is given a full list of the girls of all classes in France who have money of their own, or "expectations," and there are added the amount supposed to be commanded by them, their age and a short description of their personal looks, figures and other characteristics. Doubtless this directory has been found useful and interesting by many French men, and it is a matter for the relations of the "happy couples" rather than for those of the "unhappy" people themselves. At any rate, the book is having a good sale, and its publishers are well satisfied.

Speaking of this directory recalls that it is not quite a novel idea, since in some parts of Italy, especially Genoa, there have been for some years men and women called "marriage brokers" who make a specialty (and a good living) of bringing young people together with a view to their finding life partners. In this they are very successful and publish regularly a list of the "eligibles" of both sexes in order to facilitate matters for their clients. Very large commissions are often paid by those who are thus introduced to each other if a marriage follows, as it frequently does. It is a cynic has said that the couple are quite as well matched and quite as happy afterward by this method as by our own—and often a great deal more so.

In England such directories of heiresses are not entirely unknown, though not published for general sale as in the instances quoted above. But the write has seen more than one list sent out by people trying to emulate the Genoa system and become similar "marriage brokers." Only while giving the amount of the income of each heiress—more or less correct, generally the latter—these lists have not descended to the minute particulars which are to be found in the French directory. On receipt of a stipulated sum, however, the person sending the list promises to forward more details, and in one case, at all events, there was an offer to send on, if required, a photo of any of the ladies mentioned as "eligible heiresses."

Politeness In the Home.

It is significant to observe how some men fail to know how to treat their wives and sisters when they meet them. It seems to them quite unnecessary to lift their hats or to give their nearest and dearest the courtesy they would freely render to any woman out of the domestic circle. This should be accomplished the better. The abject and most p-r-suasive treatise on the etiquette of the home will not be able by itself to work the change, although it would be helpful toward that end. What is needed is the right training of boys and girls. Courteous behavior should be enforced by parents in the same way as other good qualities are taught.

One of the most successful instructors of the young in our day bears this testimony: "People complain of this way children behave and lay the blame of their behavior on the day school, but if they would only make the child do at home as they are required to do in school, matters would be different. They laugh at the child when he lifts his hat or says 'Please' or 'Thank you,' forgetting that others are trying to make up for their neglect of duty." This word in season should stir up parents to a sense of the importance of cultivating very prompt and simple the requirements of domestic etiquette.

Oriental Husbands.

Some girls and women seem to be extraordinarily reckless in the matter of contracting marriages with foreigners, or, rather, orientals.

Numberless are the stories we hear of English girls marrying students, who invariably represent themselves as Indian princes, but turn out to be persons of no importance, and, as the West Al means say, "go fantee." Immediately they return to their native land.

The idea of an American girl marrying a Chinese is extremely repugnant to most people, even if it were possible to imagine for one instant that she could ever live happily with him, but when she almost inevitable result of such a union is desertion at Shanghai, under brutal circumstances, the whole thing verges on the insane.

Even under the most favorable conditions such marriages are more than objectionable, and, at any rate, before entering into them, girls should make the most minute inquiries into the conditions of women's life in the countries from which their would be husbands hail and also into the status of a girl according to law in those lands.

The simplest thing, however, and on which would effectually put an end to all such difficulties, is never to listen to an offer of marriage from an oriental.

Leather Work.

How is leather work accomplished? So simply that the veriest amateur may essay it. The leather, with a design traced on paper laid on its upper surface, is affixed by drawing pins to a wooden board. The design is then indented by passing a tool not unlike a knitting needle over the whole of the tracing or cutting it in with a short sharp knife. Next the leather is removed from the board and sponged with a damp sponge on the reverse side of the leather. The pattern is then raised or embossed from the back by vigorous scraping and pressure and finally modeled and softened down on the front by laying the leather on a slab of slate, glass or marble and working tools over the face of the leather. The embossed surface can be filled in the back before modeling, if the leather is to be high, by using wax or a mixture of rye meal and damp sawdust as a paste. When dry, the pattern may be colored or set, at the will of the worker, with stain or indelible ink.

politeness. He must take her by the arm or hold her hand or catch her when she comes fluttering down like a shy, sweet bird from the dizzy height.

Matchmaking mammas, give ear! When all seems lost, try a high stone fence and a caddieless solitude. Jack mounts the fence at a single bound, then crouches and extends his hand to me. Added by an arm that stroked a Yale crew to victory, I fairly walk up the side of the stone fence and stand poised upon the very top. How strong he is! He leaps down on the other side, extends his arms upward toward me and invites me to jump.

"I will catch you," he says. "You will not!" say I. "Then suppose you remain there."

"Thanks, the view is fine." Then there is silence, golf silence, and plenty of it.

Jack gazes at me. I gaze intently beyond him. "Jack, who is that man?" Jack turns. I jump. There is no man. Jack rages. Golf is quite a game after all.

The caddie reappears from somewhere and announces that he has located the balls, and we play some more. Jack looks grieved and is a trifle inclined to sulk. He isn't at all nice when he sulks. He says I am his "dearest," and I say I am not.

And then—and then under another old oak, glorious with the tints of autumn, Jack proposes—proposes that we go round the links of life together, and I reply with a little word of three letters, and we are so happy—so happy!

After, after all, golf is a great game, a great game.

A Queen Who Loves Animals.

The queen of Belgium is known to be devoted to animals, and the following episode illustrates that fact: One burning hot day last summer a dog was drawing a milk cart containing a peasant woman along the highroad bordering the Royal park of Laken. The dog, utterly exhausted, was straining and panting under his load, but the woman remained callous to his sufferings and began to beat the poor beast mercilessly to make him go on.

At that moment the queen in her pony chaise drove out of the park. Seeing what was going on, her majesty got out of the carriage and severely admonished the woman in Flemish. She then sent her servant to the castle to fetch water for the dog and insisted on the peasant getting out and walking, remaining herself standing in the middle of the road in the sunshine until the milk cart was out of sight. She then entered her carriage and proceeded to drive off. The milkwoman seemed ignorant of the identity of the queen and grumbled at being thus interrupted in her cruel course. At the same time she dared not disobey.

Mothers of Great Men.

Schumann's mother was gifted with musical ability. Chopin's mother, like himself, was very delicate.

Gounod's mother was fond of painting and music.

Spohr's mother was an excellent judge of music, but no musician.

Milton's letters often allude to his mother in the most affectionate terms.

Wordsworth's mother had a character as peculiar as that of her gifted son.

Raleigh said that he owed all his politeness of deportment to his mother.

Goethe pays several tributes in his writings to the character of his mother.

Haydn dedicated one of his most important instrumental compositions to his mother.

Sydney Smith's mother was a clever conversationalist and very quick at repartee.

Gibbon's mother was passionately fond of reading and encouraged her son to follow her example.

Charles Darwin's mother had a decided taste for all branches of natural history.

A MOTHER'S THANKSGIVING.

BY PETER M'ARTHUR.

I have no heart for feasting;
My joy must show in tears
For the days of dread are ended,
With their sorrows and their fears.

And now he stands
By him my thanks are shared
I have much for what was given
But me.

He fought
Where the iron of battle frowned,
Then I welcomed back my hero,
With a nation's honor crowned.

To crush a
And make his fellows
I gave him to his country—
God gave him back to me.

really a very deserving fellow. He is always at least ten minutes in finding the ball when it goes over a hill or beyond a fence, and, unlike Lot's wife, he is absolutely guiltless of rubber necking. "There's a caddie for you! I wonder how much it costs Jack?" As we cross that little stream beyond the first tee Jack helps me over like a gallant fellow and then—what simpletons some men are!—he clings to my hand and pats it and tries to—well, tries to get it near his mustache, but I draw away.

After all, golf is not such a bad game, isn't you know, or wouldn't be if men were not so foolish. I stop under a magnificent oak to reproach Jack for his conduct, and while I am engaged in lecturing him the ras-cal catches my hand again and does what—what he has been trying to do before I can prevent him. Men are such blunderers; they have no tact—they never do the right thing at the right time. The idea of a great, handsome fellow like Jack kissing a girl's glove, don't you know, when—when—trifle unjust to golf. When the mob is off the links at luncheon, the game appears in a much better light, don't you know, and as for the health giving joys of the "gentle craft," what is there on earth that gives a girl a better appetite than a quiet flirtation? Between ourselves that is exactly what golf singles literally is—a quiet flirtation. When your real golfmaniac is driving or putting, utter but a word, a miserable, little, meek and modest monosyllable even, and off goes your head. Silence and lots of it is the only thing that will win the approval of a golfmaniac like Willie Bulger. Kniblicks, but playing singles with Jack under an oak tree gorgeous with the prismatic tints of autumn, while one's subsidized caddie is spending a quarter of an hour in a vain hunt for the ball beyond the hill, gives one an opportunity for an exhibition of "gentle craft" that is really great.

But really I think I may have been a

But here I am digressing at length while Jack is still holding my hand, while Jack is whispering adjectives of the superlative degree in my ear. "Dearest," he says, "dearest, I—I—Jack isn't an expert. He hasn't even the making of a good player. He says things, you see, while he is playing."

I regain exclusive possession of my left glove. I frown, and I say, "How dare you?" We of our sex all say, "How dare you?" exactly the same tone. It is the first phrase we commit to memory after our hair goes above our shoulders and our skirts go below our shoe tops. There is feminine fierceness in our tone, indignation in our air and invitation in our eyes. So Jack says.

"How dare you? Leave me, sir! This is no private lesson in palmistry," I say with withering scorn, and despite all his cynicism Jack withers, foregoes palmistry for the time being and departs all of two feet.

Golf is really becoming rather interesting, but just at this juncture the nearsighted, farsighted or sightless caddie—may his particular tribe increase!—finds the ball, and with ten strokes each we halve the hole ahead and proceed to the second tee.

We both drive the balls over the stone fence ahead. The caddie dives over the fence after them and disappears from mortal ken with Jack's small change jingling in his jeans.

"Dearest," Jack says, "dearest"—"That's exactly the word for it," I say enthusiastically. "This is just the dearest links I have ever seen—the very dearest!"

Jack looks disappointed. He gnaws his mustache. He viciously beheads a daisy with his club. He does not swear. It would not be polite. Besides, Jack never swears. I know it, for his mother told me so.

"Do you know what a foolie is, Jack?" I ask demurely. Jack knows. He has just made one, but not with his club. He looks unutterably sad, as if his dinner were cold or as if his pipe had gone out and the nearest match were miles away. How terrible it is to see a strong man suffering! He looks at me with a world of reproach in his fine brown eyes. I meet his gaze unflinchingly, and he withers again. Who says that woman's is the weaker sex?

We reach the stone fence, and Jack cheers up a bit. A liquid "stone fence" has cheering qualities to the average man, but a solid and high stone fence is even a greater joy producer to him. Give the average man a stone fence and a pretty girl and a caddieless solitude, and he's as happy as a little boy with his first red wagon. A pretty girl, you see, cannot go through a stone fence. She must go over it, and when she goes over it the average man must assist her with all his strength and cleverness and

DAISY MAY'S IDEA OF GOLF.

Under Certain Conditions She Regards It as a Mighty Pleasant Game.

[Copyright, 1898.] I have been round the links with Jack, and, like our old school friend Virgil, I sing of arms and a man. Golf is of course the real thing, and every woman must have over it or she is lost. There is a woman's championship, you know, and a woman's champion, and if one cannot be a Miss Hoyt one must admire her, and, emulating the example of the man who was kicked by Andy Jackson, glory in telling how one had the honor to be beaten by her or some other petticoated golfmaniac known to fame.

Strictly between ourselves, however, I did not take very kindly to golf at the start. "Chasing a quinine pill around a ten acre lot," as some one has very aptly described the sport, did not make me wish to camp out on the links, and this was especially true of the cold weather chasing when the quinine pill must not only be chased and overtaken, but taken as well after each game to ward off an attack of pneumonia. I raved about it of course, and I talked about corks and brasses and stymies and fozzies and bunkers and caddies and bulgers and bogies and twosomes and foursomes and niblicks until my tongue was tied in a double knot that only a shandygaff would loosen, until the sunset sky seemed a vast Scotch plaid and until, as our Michael below stairs would express it, I felt "kilt entirely."

Talking on the clubhouse veranda or on the green, however, was much easier than walking weary miles after the quinine pill under a frigid making and freckle producing sun, and of the two evils I usually chose the lesser. Consequently an invitation to go around the links from Willie Bulger Kniblicks or Reginald Brassie was invariably accepted with an outward smile and an inward groan. What possible fun can there be, thought I, in tramping a torturing mile or so in a 3 A shoe when one really ought to be wearing a 4 C, in getting tired and cross and sunburned and freckled and in climbing over stone fences when there isn't a single man looking at you that you care the snap of your finger for?

Not a bit, not a little, wee bit, was my usual answer.

I am exactly in this frame of mind when Jack proposes—Isn't that a sweet word?—proposes that we go round together, but golf and Jack and golf and Willie Bulger Kniblicks are two very different propositions, don't you see? He has been away such a long time, you know, and he does fill his knickerbockers so adorably! So when Jack p-r-o-poses—that's my word, I saw it first—that we go round the links, my heart begins to throb a trifle faster, the bunkers, and the fozzies, and the freckles are in part actually robbed of their terrors, and longer seem boggyied. The herd of golfmaniacs are at luncheon, the links are practically deserted, and the only blot on the landscape is our caddie. Why, oh, why, was the caddie ever invented? Why, oh, why, if it was really necessary to invent him, was he not made deaf, dumb and blind? All caddies are nuisances and worse than useless, but on this occasion Jack and I seem to be fortunate in our selection. Our caddie is longer seem boggyied.

the ball the night before the battle of Waterloo, was a young lady when the queen was born. Marriage, according to Dr. Schwartz of Berlin, is the most important factor in longevity. Of every 300 persons who reach the age of 40 years 125 are married and 75 unmarried. At 60 years the proportions are 46 to 22; at 70 years, 27 to 11, and at 80 years, 9 to 3. Fifty centenarians had all been married. The doctor asserts that the rate of mortality for husbands and wives between the ages of 30 and 45 is 18 per cent, while that for unmarried persons is 28 per cent.

Grand opera in Paris, according to official accounts, has been given at an expenditure over receipts of 4,500,000 francs in five years, an average loss, that is, of $180,000 a year. The subvention of 500,000 francs a year reduces the annual deficit to $20,000, but there is a further yearly deficit of $30,000 on the opera concerts.

It is not generally known that one merchant, a young Californian, 32 years of age, controls the pearl and shell market of America and Europe. His name is Samuel Harris. Thousands of gems are brought to this country and shipped to Europe by his agents, and he deals in mother of pearl shells by the ton.

CAUCUSES TONIGHT

Prospects of Largely Attended and Lively Ward Meeting.

THE LAST PARKER RALLY HELD

By New Republican Club Last Night, When Democratic Lawyer Told Members How to Get Into Republican Caucuses. More Campaign Literature.

The republican city caucuses will be held tonight, from indications today, it is probable that they will be very big and lively meetings. Every republican voter in the city has as lively an interest in tonight's caucuses as he will have in the December election. Many men who are not in the habit of attending their party caucuses have been heard to say that they will be on hand tonight "with both feet and one vote." It is realized that tonight's meetings are almost the most important part of the campaign, and those who are predicting at all, predict record breaking attendance.

It is said that the democrats take as lively an interest in these caucuses as do the republicans, and a good deal more than they do in their own caucuses Friday night. But the opinion is gaining ground that a good many of the Parker democrats who were at first planned to attempt to pass for republicans, have changed their minds, and that there will not be so much trouble as was feared from this cause. The republican ward committees will take every precaution to prevent any illegal voting of this sort, however.

The caucuses will be called at 7.30 o'clock. The meeting places are as follows: Ward 1, old Braytonville school house; ward 2, Armstrong's vacant store at 40 Brooklyn street; ward 3, store house west side of Estes mill on River street; ward 4, hose 3 building on Union street; ward 5, old box shop on Washington avenue; ward 6, old district court room in city hall; ward 7, hose 1 building on State street.

Parker's Last Rally
The New Republican club held its final rally at the Johnson store last evening. The meeting was well attended, and was called by some of the members the largest in the history of the club. All the ward workers were there, and a report was made on the condition in each ward. All the wards were said to be in very satisfactory condition for Mr. Parker's cause except ward 5, which is conceded as hopeless. Not all the other wards were asserted to be sure Parker wards, but the tone of those who reported was confident.

Mr. Parker was present but made no formal speech to his followers. The chief event of the evening was the presence of Lawyer J. H. Mack, who addressed the "republicans" at the meeting on how to get into a republican caucus. He repeated the statements that have been made in the Parker campaign literature, emphasizing the point that a man who didn't vote at this year's democratic state caucuses, was entitled to enter tonight's meetings as a republican, but omitting any special reference to the sympathy with the party and the intention to accept its candidates which the voter may be compelled to take oath on.

By the members, the meeting was pronounced "very enthusiastic and most satisfactory."

SAY IT WASN'T ILLEGAL.

Parker Supporters Defend the Anonymous Circular Publishing.

The active supporters of Mr. Parker's candidacy for mayor, express warm disapproval of the item in yesterday's issue saying that attention had been called to the fact that a number of the circulars which had been sent out unsigned, except by the name of a committee. This belief was based on a section of the election law which places a penalty on the issuing of attacks on a candidate without the name and address of the author or two officers of the organization which backed them.

It was said by one Parker worker that the law did not cover the form of documents which had been sent out in Mr. Parker's interests. Then it was claimed that the Parker documents had not been attacked at all. On this latter point the readers of the campaign literature can judge for themselves. On the first point, that the law did not cover the form of literature sent out, local lawyers have expressed opinions on both sides.

In justice to yesterday's item, and also that a somewhat unfamiliar section of the law may be brought to public attention, the section in question is given here. It is section 394 of the Election Act, codification of 1898, and is as follows:

Whoever intentionally writes, prints, posts, or distributes, or causes to be written, printed, posted, or distributed, a circular or poster, which is designed or tends to injure or defeat any candidate for nomination or election to any public office or political action, unless there appears upon such circular or poster in a conspicuous place either the names of the chairman and secretary, or of two officers of the political or other organization issuing the same, or of some voter who is responsible therefore, with his name and residence, and the street and number thereof, if any, shall be punished by imprisonment in jail not exceeding six months.

Another Effort to Get Democrats to Attend Tonight's Caucuses.
The "Parker Campaign Committee," as it now calls itself probably for the reason that a considerable number of members of the old New Republican club including its president are for Mayor Cady and a number of democrats have joined Mr. Parker's forces, issued what it called its last campaign document last evening in the shape of a dodger. It contained some interesting reading.

Probably the most interesting sentence in this last appeal is this: "Citizens, attend the caucuses tomorrow night as you have a right to and this club will stand between you and any harm that may come to you by your act." This indicates an effort to have all citizens, republicans and democrats alike, attend the caucuses. It indicates an idea that tonight's caucuses are citizens' caucuses and not republican. Republicans should remember that their caucuses are tonight; democrats should remember their caucuses come Friday night.

The clause referred to says "this club" will shoulder the damages resulting from any citizen, including democrats, attending a republican caucus. What "club" is meant? It is probably not the old New Republican club because the president of that club and many of its members are not favoring Mr. Parker. It must refer to the "Parker Campaign Committee." No names of that committee are given so it would be difficult for any democrat intending to attend tonight's republican caucuses to know who would "have him from harm" in case the law relating to illegal attendance upon caucuses was brought to bear upon him.

The only safe and honorable way seems to be for republicans to attend their caucuses and for democrats to attend theirs.

News of the Theaters.

"A bachelor's honeymoon" at the Columbia tonight is a very clever farce comedy, said to be exceedingly funny, and known to have been well received in other places. Its cast includes a number of names well known to the legitimate stage, and from the advance promises, it is safe to say that if the show isn't good it ought to be.

From present indications, a good many people will go to see "A twig of laurel" at the Columbia tomorrow evening to see Eddie Bald, the famous bicycling champion; a good many more will go because of the location of the play being placed at the Greylock in South Williamstown, with Hui's scenery, and a good many more will go because the play is believed to be very attractive drama with an interesting plot and played by good actors and actresses. Eddie Bald himself is as popular a man as ever took a wheeling prize, and with a play such as "A twig of laurel" is said to be, should make a decided hit here.

Tickets are on sale at Bartlett's drug store for the two Thanksgiving day performances at the Columbia of "My Sweetheart." It is a bright musical comedy of attractive promise, in three acts, and from what is said of it, should prove an ideal "holiday production," one which may safely be called a play for the family. The management gives assurance that it is refined in tone, in addition to being bright and funny, and filled with catchy music.

The Columbia will close a busy week Saturday with two performances of "The world against her." It is a melodrama, with villains of all kinds, a heroine or two, comedies, and a detective.

Several hundred people were unable to gain admission to the opening performance, "La Belle Marie," by the Pitman Comedy company at the Wilson theater last evening. The performance opened with Madam Sousa, a "magician" of considerable ability, who entertained the large audience for half an hour, with some very mysterious tricks. "La Belle Marie" was interpreted by a company the equal of which is seldom seen in repertoire. Miss Annie E. Davis and Frederic Herzog are deserving of special mention. The specialties by Babay Cecil, Mamie Lincoln and George E. Fisher were excellent. This afternoon "A Wife's Secret" was presented and this evening, Charles A. Blaney's great melodrama, "The Electrician" will be the bill. Matinees are given daily through the week.

The Fight for a Soldier's Body.

The movement by Mrs. Hill of Springfield, Wis., to remove from Pittsfield the body of her half-brother, Sergeant Newell, who planted the flag at San Juan, and who was buried in the lot of an uncle, Mr. Voshurg, in Pittsfield, August 29, has assumed a new form. The half sister petitioned the probate court to be appointed the administratrix of his estate, and the hearing was set for last Tuesday, but no one appeared. Now the sister is to bring a bill in equity against the Voshurgs to recover the body and exhum it, but this far no Pittsfield attorney has cared to take hold of the matter. Ex-District Attorney Hibbard is counsel for the Voshurgs and will oppose any action tending to disturb the body.

Bargain Challenge—This Week Only

John Rouane of Adams authorizes the following challenge. He will run 10 yards even up against John Nimmons, Mr. Decongne, Mr. Norman of Adams or Melis of North Adams. He will run the following men if they give him the stated handicaps, Conroy 4 yards, Senegal 5 yards, Lacy 2 yards, Thomas a yard, Fitzgerald 5 yards, Buckley 5 yards or Conroy 5 yards. Any of these men will be given a race under these condition for any amount of money. The challenge will be open for this week only.

Fitchburg Train Killed Him.

Coroner DeFreest and District Attorney's Officer Kato of Troy were in Fitchburg Falls and Eagle Bridge Sunday investigating a report that Thomas Haren, whose mangled body was found on the railroad track near Eagle Bridge Saturday, had been murdered, it being reported that Haren was shot and the body placed on the track for a train to obliterate evidence of the crime. The report, it was found, lacked foundation. Coroner DeFreest has secured a jury to hold an inquest.

Amherst's New Captain.

The Amherst football team has elected Will D. Ballantine of Bombay, India, captain for next year. Ballantine is president of the sophomore class and has played a fast game throughout this season at left tackle. He saw considerable football, before entering college at the Fitchburg high school, where for two years he was captain of the school team, playing one year at halfback and the next at end. Upon entering college a year ago he easily made left end, where he made a name for himself by his tackling. This season he was transferred to left tackle, which position he has played in every game. Ballantine has a thorough knowledge of the game and beside being a star football player, he is an all-round athlete.

No other preparation has ever done so many people so much good as Hood's Nerve-Pain-Expeller, America's Great-Cure Medicine.

ORDINATION AT WILLIAMSTOWN.

Rev. Willis H. Butler Installed Pastor of the Congregational Church.

The ordination and installation of Rev. Willis H. Butler, the new pastor of the Williamstown Congregational church, took place yesterday afternoon and evening. The meeting of the Congregational conference of northern Berkshire was called to order at 4 o'clock by Rev. J. H. Laird of Hinsdale. Mr. Laird was chosen moderator, and Rev. G. V. Stryker of White Oaks scribe. The examination of the candidate proved satisfactory to the delegates, and the meeting was adjourned until evening. The moderator opened the evening session by the conventional statement, which was followed by the report of the scribe. President Carter of Williams college offered the invocation and read from the scriptures. Rev. John H. Denison of Williamstown preached the ordination sermon, taking as his text Matthew v. 17, "I am not come to destroy but to fulfil." The prayer of ordination and installation was offered by Rev. A. B. Penniman of Adams. Rev. Mr. Laird then gave the charge to the new pastor, who afterwards received the right hand of fellowship from Rev. Mr. Tenney of this city. Rev. Dr. I. C. Smart of Pittsfield addressed the members of the church, reminding them of their duties in respect to their new pastor. Rev. Mr. Butler pronounced the benediction, and coming down from the pulpit, shook hand with each one of the congregation as he passed.

The delegates present were: Pittsfield, South church, Rev. I. C. Smart, G. W. Clark; First church, Rev. Dr. W. V. Davis, George Harding; Pilgrim Memorial church, Rev. Raymond Calkins, Mr. McArthur; Windsor, Rev. Mr. Sterling, Mr. Whitmarsh; Hinsdale, Rev. J. H. Laird, G. T. Plunkett; Richmond, Mr. Sharp; White Oaks, Rev. G. V. Stryker, Rev. W. R. Stocking; North Adams, Rev. W. R. Tenney, George Perry; Adams, Rev. A. B. Penniman, Mr. Mote; Williams college church, President Franklin Carter; South Williamstown, Rev. G. C. Douglass, George P. Merrett.

MEETING TO REORGANIZE.

Company M Will Meet Tomorrow Night For This Purpose.

Captain H. O. Hicks has sent postal cards to the members of Company M announcing that a meeting will be held at the armory in Adams Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the reorganization of the company as volunteer militia. That this meeting will be well attended and that the company will again assume their old standing as one of the best militia companies in the state is assured. However, there are some of the men who say they have had all the soldier life they wish for and will not join the company under any consideration. The older members especially say this.

On the other hand, the young men are anxious to regain their old standing, and say that it will be easy hereafter and they want to have the good time.

St. Francis' Choir Concert.

The following is the program for the concert to be given Thursday evening in St. Francis' church by the choir and orchestra. It includes a number of selections that will prove among the most enjoyable ever heard in the church. "To thee, O Country" was sung at the jubilee, and "O Thou, My Hope, My Country," and "Vein Creator" will be among the best of the choruses.

The church choir has been greatly strengthened within the past few months, and has been practicing faithfully for this concert. Prof. LeClair, the organist, has every reason to feel proud of the success he has attained in his long service, and it is probable that nothing more enjoyable in the musical will be heard here this season. Here is the program:
